PROPOSED CURRICULAR REVISION OF THE BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

I. Background/Rationale

The present curriculum for the Bachelor of Science in Community Development (BSCD) program of the Department of Community Development was approved and implemented in 2012. It is designed to prepare graduates who are equipped with core knowledge and competencies, skills and attitudes to engage in community development work that promotes people's participation and empowerment, gender equality and sustainable development.

BSCD offers a total of one hundred thirty-eight (138) units composed of forty-five (45) units of general education courses, nine (9) units of elective courses, three (3) units mandated course and eighty-one (81) units of disciplinary courses. The BSCD disciplinary courses are divided into three (3) clusters designed to attain the objectives of the program.

Cluster	Description	Units
Development Perspectives	The cluster includes courses on perspectives and theories on Community Development and provides opportunities for students to analyze the multi-dimensional character of poverty and develop understanding of issues and strategies in development. It puts premium on perspectives related to an empowering, participatory, gender-responsive and sustainable development.	18 units
CD Methods and Skills	The cluster focuses on competency building on the major methods and strategies in Community Development. These are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Community Organizing • Participatory Planning and Management • Community Development Research 	42 units
Field Instruction	The cluster covers 18 units of practicum courses and one (1) seminar course taken while on field. The cluster provides the students direct exposure to and involvement in community development work, learn with the people in the communities, test or enhance competencies and engage in theory-building. As a curricular feature of the discipline, fieldwork integrates and synthesizes the theory and practice of people-centered and community engaged scholarship, a distinguishing character of community development	21 units as an academic program and a profession.

The proposed revisions of the BSCD curriculum are being undertaken in order to fully align the program to the New UPD GE Program approved in the 1330th BOR meeting on September 7, 2017.

III. Revision of a Course

A. Change in Pre-requisite

From: CD 190
Prerequisite: Math 1/equivalent

To: CD 190
Prerequisite: None

Justification: Math competencies required in Statistics for CD are being addressed in the K-12 Basic Program.

1 VI. Change in Program Requirements

2 A. Change in GE Requirement

3 The number of GE courses will be reduced from 45 units to 36 units. The 36 units
4 will consist of UPD-prescribed GE courses (21 units) and BSCD program-prescribed
5 GE courses (15 units). These are summarized in the table below:

6 From:

	AH	MST	SSP
Core GE	Comm 3 Eng 10 Fil 40 9 u	STS 3 u	Kas 1 Philo 1 6 u	18 u
Program- Prescribed	--	Math 1 Env Sci 1 6 u	Soc Sci 2 or Socio 10 3 u	9 u

Program- Prescribed	SPEECH 30 / MATH 10 / Env Sci 1/DRMAPS / ETHICS 1/SAS 1 /	12 u
GE Elective		3u
Total		36 u

*This GE course is for reconfiguration based on the new GE Framework (2016).

14
15
16 Justification: The proposed changes above are to align the program to the New 17 UPD GE Program approved in the 1330th BOR meeting on 18 September 7, 2017.

19
20 The program-prescribed GE courses aim to equip the students with 21 additional knowledge and competencies to complement and 22 supplement the CD major courses.

B. Change in the Total Number of Units of Elective Courses

From: Students can opt to take nine (9) units of electives from the following disciplines: Political Science & Economics, Sociology, History & Anthropology, Arts & Communication, Education, Agriculture, Business Administration, Fisheries, Public Health, Public Administration, Family Life & Child Development, Engineering, Nutrition, Psychology, Social Work, Geography.

To: Students can opt to take 18 units in any of the following courses in the list of proposed electives: Anthropology, Geography, Political Science, Sociology, History, Psychology, Education, Art Studies, Public Administration, Family Life and Child Development, Mass Communication, Theater Arts and Social Work.

Justification: The reduction in the number of units of GE courses from 45 to 36 units will allow students to take an additional nine (9) units of elective subjects that can help enhance the multidisciplinary nature of CD as a practice discipline.

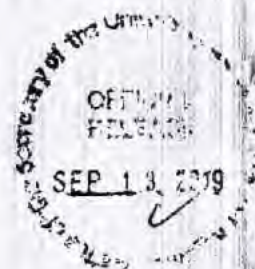

Arts and Communication was separated into specific disciplines namely, Art Studies, Theater Arts, and Mass Communication. Taking courses in these specific disciplines will develop and enhance the intellectual and creative abilities of students on arts and communication that they can apply in various community situations.

Courses from Economics, Agriculture, Business Administration, Fisheries, Public Health, Engineering and Nutrition had been deleted from the list due to the pre-requisite subjects required of these courses.
